Congratulations to Sean Payton and Greg McMahon — Super Bowl XLIV Champions!

Panthers everywhere were thrilled to watch head coach Sean Payton ’87 and the New Orleans Saints win their first Super Bowl championship! Sports writers have lauded Payton's leadership, calling it "gutsy " and the "best coaching we've ever seen in a Super Bowl."

In a bonus for EIU fans, EIU alumnus Greg McMahon ’83, the Saints' special teams coach, executed a key play that has some calling him the game's "unheralded hero."

Take a look back at Payton's days as EIU's record-setting quarterback in this great video.

Alumni spotlight: Craig Titley ’89

Craig Titley ’89 transformed a popular book series into the script for the much-anticipated “Percy Jackson & the Olympians: The Lightning Thief,” which hits theaters on Feb. 12.

In this Q&A interview, Titley calls the project "the most pleasurable writing experience I’ve ever had," which is saying a lot, considering he also penned the screenplays for the “Cheaper by the Dozen” films, “Scooby-Doo” and an episode of “Star Wars: The Clone Wars” animated series.

Titley, a Mattoon native, signed autographs at the Kerasotes ShowPlace 10 in Mattoon on Feb. 20.

Metrics Web Page now Available for Public Viewing

Eastern’s constituents include our faculty, staff, students, parents, alumni, Board of Trustees and elected officials, as well as the citizens of Illinois. It is our duty and our desire to provide qualitative and quantitative information about the university to all interested individuals and groups, and we do so in several ways. The university’s Web page is becoming more and more important in this regard.

I have instituted a metrics Web page to make a reasonably large set of data about the university readily available to all those who are interested. Access to this Web page enables interested parties to track data over multiple years. And using these data enables the university to track its progress in selected areas, especially those related to our university priorities and related goals.

The metrics Web page can be found here. I invite you to visit the site and review the material found there. I also invite any comments and/or questions you might have. Please send those to univplan@eiu.edu.

Thank you,
Bill Perry, President

Irwin Chosen as Dean of Arts and Humanities

Bonnie Irwin is the new dean for Arts and Humanities as of Wednesday. Irwin, who was the only internal candidate for the position, was previously the dean of the Honors College.

In a Daily Eastern News article written on Dec. 11, Irwin said that she is looking forward to being more involved with the humanities, since she has also been an English professor.

"I look forward to working with faculty again, to being more engaged in my academic home - the humanities - and being able to advocate for humanities and fine arts," Irwin said in the article.

"The most important role of the dean is to collect the stories of the great accomplishments of the students and faculty and communicate that in a compelling way to donors," Irwin said.

Valparaiso Appoints Bradshaw VP of Enrollment Management

Dr. Boyd A. Bradshaw, an experienced leader in enrollment strategy and operations, has been appointed to join Valparaiso University's senior leadership team as vice president for enrollment management in March.

He earned his bachelor's degree in business and master's degree in education from Eastern Illinois University, as well as a doctorate in education from Saint Louis University.

Spring 2010 Enrollment 'Right on Target'

Spring 2010 enrollment at Eastern is "right on target." "Spring enrollment is always a few percentage points lower than what we see during the previous fall semester," said Blair Lord, provost and vice president for academic affairs. "And this year is no different."

The current on- and off-campus enrollment total of 11,075 reflects a slight drop from 11,157 in Spring 2009. Spring 2010 numbers include an on-campus enrollment of 9,887 and an off-campus enrollment of 1,188. Those numbers were 9,968 and 1,189, respectively, last spring.

A breakdown of Eastern's 9,395 undergraduate students is as follows (with Spring 2009 figures in parentheses): freshmen, 1,731 (1,837); sophomores, 1,887 (1,893); juniors, 2,370 (2,389); and seniors, 3,407 (3,338). Graduate students total 1,680 (1,700).

Female students continue to outnumber male students -- 6,455 to 4,620 (6,496 to 4,661 last spring). Minority students, who represent more than 15 percent of Eastern's total enrollment, show an overall increase from Spring 2009. Categories are represented as follows: black, 1,193 (1,068); Hispanic, 294 (292); Asian/Pacific Islander, 131 (128); and American Indian/Alaskan Native, 57 (42).

Congrats to our “Citizens of the Year”!

Congratulations to former Business Advisory Board members Rick Seimer and Charlie Adams who were recently named “Citizens of the Year” by their respective Chambers of Commerce in Effingham, Illinois and Mattoon, Illinois. Their willingness to support their communities and make a difference in the lives of the residents is to be commended. Their gifts of time, talents and resources as a past member of the EIU School of Business Advisory Board, serves as an example to our students of the importance of social responsibility as a business and community leader. Congratulations!
Handel's Water Music Performed by Symphony Chamber Orchestra

In the darkened concert hall, music flowed off the violins like water. The arrangement of instruments created the illusion of floating downstream on a spring day. The Eastern Symphony Chamber Orchestra and Collegium Musicum presented "Water Music," "V'adoro, pupille," "Appalachian Spring Suite" and "Piano Concerto op. 54" in Doudna's Dvorak Concert Hall.

The theme of nature and water inspired two of the key pieces in the nearly two-hour-long concert. During a river party, put on in England by King George I, a barge full of musicians played music specially made for the event by George Handel. The music became popular over time and was used as the first piece of the concert.

Ashley McHugh, a senior studying voice, performed the vocals for "V'adoro, pupille," another one of Handel's works, although there are no singers in "Handel's Water Music." McHugh followed the complexities of the music with French vocals as if her voice were an instrument, and was congratulated repeatedly for her performance during the intermission.

After the audience came back from the intermission they heard Appalachian Spring, which was Bryan Rolfsen's favorite piece. The piece expresses the American spirit of exploration and celebrates a young engaged couple in a new Pennsylvania farmhouse. While the story involves the couple's new relationship, the story was not told in words but through music.

The final piece was a piano concerto played by Natalia Negru. Negru started playing piano at the age of seven and is working on her master's degree in piano performance at Eastern.

Lumpkin Relocation Still in Effect

The flood in Lumpkin Hall last month has caused 30 classes and hundreds of students to be relocated across campus.

Professors who had their classes displaced because of the flooding had to work with changing locations or the cancellation of classes altogether that week. Of the 29 1000-level classes scheduled for that Wednesday, three classes were canceled, while the other 26 classes were relocated to classrooms in Coleman Hall, Blair Hall, the Physical Science building and Buzzard Hall, where most of them remain.

The cost of the damage has not been determined; however, repairs for Lumpkin Hall are still in progress. The hall was damaged when a pipe ruptured on Jan. 12, flooding the 1000 and 2000 level floor, spraying water down two stories to the basement of the building. The pipe burst because it was exposed to freezing temperatures during winter break. When the building was reheated at the start of the semester, the pipe thawed, causing the flooding.

University Waits for Funds

A letter from Illinois' university presidents sent last week to the governor and comptroller demanding a timeline for appropriated payments has gone unanswered.

Paul McCann, treasurer and director of business affairs, said the presidents asked for a timeline, but the conversations with the comptroller did not result in any further information. "They have no way of predicting when they're going to be able to make the payments," McCann said. "The governor's office said that we would (receive the full appropriation). Representitives from the comptroller's office (have) said they cannot make any commitment, and their commitment is on how much is actually provided to us and when."

Now three-quarters of the way through the fiscal year, the university has received just more than a third of its appropriation, causing a strain on its cash flow. The letter said that without further payment the state's universities would be forced to take even more drastic actions.

"We've received enough from the state to make it roughly to the end of April," McCann said. "We don't know where it's going to end up. Certainly, we continue to monitor the situation and monitor our cash flow in order to make sure we know where we're at, and then we'll have to make some decisions as to where we're going."

Eastern's appropriation for fiscal year 2010 is $50.6 million. Federal stimulus money makes up $3 million of this total. Illinois applied for higher education stimulus funds in December, but has not yet received it. "As a condition of that stimulus money for education they have to meet the Maintenance of Effort Level," McCann said. "The state has to maintain our appropriation level from 2006 spending, which was $47.6 million. The state elected to fill our budget back up to the 2009 level with stimulus money."

Illinois is legally required to meet this appropriation in order to receive the stimulus funds. "If they have the obligation to do it, they should be sending us the money," McCann said. "Nobody has the right to reduce that without taking it back through the legislature. Now, if you don't have money, you don't have money, so that's where the whole thing gets complicated."

The university communicates its financial needs to the state regularly, nearly once a week recently. Though no timeline has been set, President Bill Perry said the state will be receiving additional revenues soon, which could put some much needed money in Eastern's pocket. "There will be some revenues coming in with receipt of personal income tax and corporate income tax, and there will also be some stimulus money coming in," Perry said. "There will be a set of revenues that they are going to have to prioritize how they are going to distribute those, but we haven't received any signals as to how they might do that."

NEW PAINTINGS BY MARIA TOMASULA AT THE TARBLE ARTS CENTER

The exhibition "Saturation: New Paintings by Maria Tomasula" is on view through March 21 in the Tarble Arts Center Brainard Gallery. This is the first exhibition for most of the paintings. Working with themes of identity, being and self-hood in the 'post-human' age, these paintings work within and extend the tradition of Western painting, especially as developed in Latin American devotional art. Tomasula is the Michael P. Grace Endowed Professor of Art, University of Notre Dame. She is represented by Forum Gallery, New York City, and Zolla/Lieberman Gallery, Chicago. This is a Doudna Fine Arts Center New and Emerging Artist Series program, presented in cooperation with the EIU Art Department and the Tarble Arts Center. Tomasula will present a public lecture at 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25, in the Tarble Arts Center Atrium. Admission is free and the public is invited.
