LABRATORY SCHOOL

EASTERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY

This year brought a change to the Laboratory Junior High pending the decision to close our school at the end of next year.

Student Council elections were held as usual in the fall of the school year. Diane Butler was elected president, Laura Nichols became vice-president, and Erin Hussey won the secretary-treasurer post through a large write-in vote.

A presidential and state mock election was held, and the results were almost identical with the real election. Both the elementary and junior high classes were registered and voted. Each class was given a precinct number and junior high students chose candidates to represent them, in an assembly held to inform the voters on the issues.

Cheerleader tryouts were held and Jana Grigoroff, Jane Spaniol, Susan Sanders, Ruth Floyd, Carol Butler, and Julie Knott were chosen. This year the girls who were not selected as cheerleaders were given an opportunity to form a pom-pon squad. The new group performed at some home games and pep assemblies.

The Student Council decided to raise money to build a school in an underdeveloped country in cooperation with the Peace Corps. It will serve as a memorial to our school. Thus, while the Laboratory School may be a memory at Eastern, it will be remembered in another country by people who are not as fortunate as we.

One of the fund raising activities for this memorial was a successful chili supper held in March. Over one thousand tickets were sold. More projects will be planned to bring the total closer to the fifteen hundred dollar goal.

Noon hour activities this year included ping pong and a ping pong tournament.

Such are the main aspects of the school year. Much has happened since the Laboratory School opened, and in our hearts it will never close.
