FACULTY DEVELOPMENT EXTERNAL SPEAKER SPRING 2008

Virginia S. Lee, Ph.D. has twenty-five years experience working with educational organizations. She is the 2007 President of the Professional and Organizational Development Network (POD) in Higher Education, the largest professional organization dedicated to faculty and educational development in higher education in the United States. She served as Associate Director of the Faculty Center for Teaching and Learning at North Carolina State University. There she was responsible for the design and implementation of programs for faculty including a nationally recognized, campus-wide inquiry-guided learning program. She also played a leadership role in other university-wide reform efforts related to assessment and technology.

In 2001-2004, Lee served as a member of the Core Committee of the POD Network in Higher Education and also chaired the organization's Publications Committee. She edited two essay series: Essays on Teaching Excellence and the "Thriving" column in the National Education Association (NEA) publication, The Advocate.

Lee has published and presented nationally on a variety of topics related to teaching and learning in higher education. She is the editor of Teaching and Learning through Inquiry: A Guidebook for Institutions and Instructors (2004; Stylus Publishing) and she serves on the editorial review boards of the Journal of Faculty Development, Innovative Higher Education, and To Improve the Academy.

She holds a Ph.D. (Educational Psychology), UNC-Chapel Hill; M.B.A. (Management), Stern School, New York University; and B.A. cum laude (English Literature), Smith College.
