WHAT WILL I STUDY?

The Mass Communication option introduces students to the contemporary media landscape with a focus on television, film, and new media. Students discover how these industries function while also gaining the knowledge and skills necessary to assess the media's impact on society.

In addition to the Communication Studies core, which provides students with the necessary foundation to understand and critique messages, Mass Communication students learn to evaluate, not only why a message is created, but also how the medium impacts the understanding of its content. By considering persuasive messages from popular culture, film and political communication, students hone their critical thinking skills and enhance their ability to create meaningful mediated communication.

WHAT CAREERS CAN I PURSUE?

Mass Communication students graduate with the knowledge and skills necessary to be successful in the contemporary workplace. This opens the door to a wide variety of employment opportunities.

Graduates find jobs in the private, government, and non-profit sectors. Employers often seek out applicants with strong communication skills and an understanding of how communication messages influence the world around us.

Graduates in this option are particularly well prepared to work as leaders in media industries, thriving in environments that require understanding of media and how it functions.
