Pathways to Excellence in Online Instruction

I have not met EIU's Online Course Policy Requirement. →

Online Course Development Institute (OCDi) Certificate

The OCDi is for faculty developing a new online course that have not met the Online Course Policy Requirement.

FDIC@EIU
EASTERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY™

For information about FDIC's Excellence in Online Instruction, go to the Faculty Development and Innovation Center website at http://www.eiu.edu/fdic or contact us at fdic@eiu.edu.

I have met the Online Course Policy Requirement, and I am developing a new online course. →

Online Course Development Resources (OCDr)

The OCDr is for faculty developing a new online course that have completed the OCDi or met the Online Course Policy by some other means. The OCDr is resources only. There is no certificate of completion.

I am redesigning an online course that I have previously taught, and have not received the Quality Online Course certification. →

Quality Online Design Institute (QODi) Certificate

QODi is the first course in the Online Teaching Certificate (OTC) series. QODi also helps faculty prepare for the Quality Online Course (QOC) certification.

+

Online Teaching Strategies Institute (OTSi) Certificate

OTSi is the second course in the Online Teaching Certificate (OTC) series.

=

Online Teaching Certificate (OTC)

The OTC is awarded to faculty completing both the Quality Online Design Institute (QODi) and the Online Teaching Strategies Institute (OTSi).

I am redesigning an online course that I have previously taught and I have received the Quality Online Course certification. →

Online Teaching Strategies Institute (OTSi) Certificate

OTSi is the second course in the Online Teaching Certificate (OTC) series.

=

Online Teaching Certificate (OTC)

The OTC is awarded to faculty completing the Online Teaching Strategies Institute (OTSi) that have already earned the Quality Online Course (QOC) certification.

I have taught my online course at least two semesters and want to prepare the course for the Quality Online Course certification. →

Quality Online Design Institute (QODi) Certificate

QODi helps faculty prepare for the Quality Online Course certificate and is the first course in the Online Teaching Certificate (OTC) series.

→

Quality Online Course (QOC) Certificate

The QOC is for online courses taught at least two semesters that meet the Quality Matters Standards in an internal review.