

Panjwani, Jyoti

Associate Professor
English Department
Eastern Illinois University
1996-present

I received B.A. (honors) and M.A. in Comparative Literature from Jadavpur University, Calcutta, India in 1985 and 1987 respectively and a second M.A. and Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1992 and 1996 respectively. My research interests and publications are in the areas of Postcolonial Indian and Postcolonial Indian Feminist literature and theory. Recently, I have become interested in studying contemporary theories of translation and involved in translating postcolonial Indian works from Bengali and Sindhi into English.
