DESCRIPTION

This is an introductory course which examines the fundamental principles of the U.S. Constitution and political system. In addition to learning in detail about the conception of the Constitution and the document's relevance on today's society, this course will also focus on the three branches of government, civil rights and civil liberties, government institutions, political parties, the media, political behavior, and the electoral process. Students are expected to keep current with contemporary political events.

REQUIRED TEXT

Larry Berman and Bruce Allen Murphy Approaching Democracy, 6th Edition

POLICIES

1. All papers are to be turned in to me personally in class or placed in my mailbox. No papers will be accepted through E-mail.
2. All assignments should be handed in on time. If you are unable to hand in an assignment on time, you should inform me as soon as possible as to why said assignment is not being handed in on time. With the exception of medical emergencies, all papers handed in more than one week after the due date will not be accepted. The late penalty for all papers unexcused will be one letter grade. If you are missing class due to an excused academic or athletic commitment, you must turn in your work early in order for the late policy to not apply.
3. If you miss an exam or quiz due to a documented excuse, you must reschedule a make-up exam no later than the first day you return to class (with appropriate documentation for all days missed). The make-up exams/quizzes may differ in content and format from the regular exams/quizzes.
4. Turn off ALL electronic devices in class!!!
5. Students are expected to arrive to class in a timely fashion and be prepared by the time class starts. Habitual lateness is rude to the instructor as well as your classmates, and will not be tolerated.

DISABILITIES

Students with a disability documented through the campus disability services office should notify the instructor as soon as possible. The instructor will do his best to accommodate your needs.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Students are expected to comply with the University's STUDENT CONDUCT CODE in ALL facets of the course. Any student who cheats and/or plagiarizes on an exam or quiz will receive an F grade (in the form of a 0 score) for that portion of the course along with formal written notification to the Judicial Affairs Office. Keep in mind that a student cannot drop a course with an academic misconduct allegation unresolved.

EVALUATION FORMAT

Your final grade is based on the following evaluation format:

Exams: There will be three exams (worth 100 points each) which will cover both lecture and reading assignments. All exams will include 50 multiple choice questions.

- (Note: Your best exam score will be doubled)

Writing Assignment: Political Socialization Paper (worth 50 points)

- Write a three to four page informative paper where you analyze the various agents of political socialization on your own beliefs.
- Which agents' of political socialization have had the most impact on your political beliefs? In what ways?
- What specific circumstances/ instances/ experiences have shaped your political (or lack of political) views?
- Students should use a minimum of three scholarly sources to supplement and guide responses (The textbook cannot be used as a main source).
- Be sure to include a title page (with a title), proper transitions, an introduction, and a conclusion. Your grammar, spelling, sentence structure, and organization will affect your final grade. Don't forget to proofread your papers! Use any consistent citation style for references, but make sure to attach a bibliography.
- This assignment is due at the beginning of class on Friday, April 10th
