- Resolve to continue learning something daily
- Determine what you enjoy learning
- Find a group to enhance and share learning experiences
- Teach what you have learned

Care Choir

Provide a peaceful respite for local hospice patients and their families.

The objective of Care Choir is to provide a soothing presence and comfort to Hospice patients and families during a difficult time with short, peaceful serenades of familiar a cappella songs. Lincolnland Hospice of Sarah Bush Lincoln provides copies of music and coordinates the list of patients.

In addition, other residents of the long-term care facilities in Charleston and Mattoon gather in the common room to hear us sing hymns and golden oldies to them. We alternate between the two cities, singing twice per month. Attendance in the Choir is on a "come when you are able" basis.

If you find joy in music and/or feel called to provide comfort to hospice patients, please consider lending your voice to Care Choir.

Volunteers agree to:

- Half-day training required for working with Hospice
- Provide email address for communications regarding Care Choir events
- Healthcare Worker Fingerprint/Background Check, TB test, Hepatitis B and MMR vaccinations (all provided at no cost by Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Services)

If you would like to participate in Care Choir, please contact the Academy of Lifelong Learning at Eastern Illinois University, 217-581-5114 or academy@eiu.edu

- As an Academy Pass student, you will have the benefit of an EIU email account.
- Complimentary access to www.Lynda.com, an online learning resource that offers business, software, technology and creative skills classes is included. ($360 value)

Twenty years ago, readers became acquainted with Harry Potter, whose fame rests largely on being "the boy who lived." J. K. Rowling's epic series has invited millions of readers to reflect upon what it means to live by considering what it means to die. The condition of mortality is not what Harry needs simply to outrun. In fact, the series appears to be a long meditation on what it means to embrace the condition of mortality. We live in a culture that tends to deny the reality of death at the same time that it luxuriates in ultra-violent imaginings of death. Without the benefit of contemporary Ars Moriendi (or advice on the art of dying), we can nevertheless turn to imaginative works like the Potter series for philosophical reflections on the connectedness of being in the world and leaving it.

Dr. Suzie Asha Park is a Professor of English at EIU. She earned her Ph.D. in English at UC Berkeley and her B.A. in English and in African and Asian Languages and Literature at Duke University. While her undergraduate interests included pre-med studies, English, and music, her passion for literature won out in the end. Her areas of teaching and research interest include British Romanticism, the novel, poetry, women writers, sentimental culture, literary theory, information theory, and the medical humanities.

On the west coast of Scotland, on her most southerly border, is the district of Dumfries and Galloway, once known as Old Galloway. Adjacent to that runs the border with England running from the Solway Firth, on the west coast, to Lamberton just north of Berwick on the east coast. As the crow flies it is a distance of about 75 miles. In medieval times, it was a thriving and bustling area for commerce, architecture, education and for religious & social change. But, Old Galloway and the border lands also became notorious for the lawlessness that pervaded the area due to raiding bandits and warring armies crisscrossing the border, and for religious intolerance that sparked the demise of many border icons and peoples. This presentation tells the story of a once flourishing and dynamic area of southern Scotland and the forces that came to cause its collapse.
