4. For technology-delivered and other nontraditional-delivered courses/sections, address the following:

- a. Describe how the format/technology will be used to support and assess students’ achievement of the specified learning objectives: The EIU-approved online learning management system will be used to provide a sound virtual learning environment for students enrolled in an online section of this course. The course management system’s communication tools will be used to promote synchronous and/or asynchronous discussion and analysis of key course topics by students. ‘Quiz and survey’ tools will be used to assess student learning and depth of content knowledge. Assignment ‘dropbox’ tools will be used to manage submission of learning activities, such as case studies, writing samples, and creative projects. Online versions of the EIU-approved assessment rubrics will be used to assess student performance. ‘Grade book’ tools will be used to assist with grade finalization and confidential grade posting.
- b. Describe how the integrity of student work will be assured: The integrity of student work with the assessment process will be assured by utilizing the course management system’s assessment settings such as randomization of test questions from a question database, using short answer & essay questions to test for depth of content knowledge, limiting student views of each question to 1, and limiting the amount of time for each assessment to be completed. The integrity of student writing will be assured through the use of the EIU-approved anti-plagiarism software. This software will help assure original authorship of writing samples submitted by students.

- c. Describe provisions for and requirements of instructor-student and student-student interaction, including the kinds of technologies that will be used to support the interaction (e.g., e-mail, web-based discussions, computer conferences, etc.): Regular interaction between student and instructor will be maintained through the use of EIU e-mail, the course management system's 'mail' tool, the course management system's 'chat' function, and web-based conferencing technologies. Student-to-student interaction during weekly synchronous and/or asynchronous threaded discussions centered on course content will be supported through the use of the course management system's 'discussion' tools.

5. For courses numbered 4750-4999, specify additional or more stringent requirements for students enrolling for graduate credit. These include:

a. course objectives;

In addition to the undergraduate student objectives, students taking this course for graduate credit will:

- Analyze group discussions on legal concepts to navigate particular areas of sporting interest and their intersection with the law
- Produce independent research involving an issue relating to sport and the law

b. projects that require application and analysis of the course content; and

-For group projects, students taking the course for graduate credit will be required to serve as captains of their group and will be held to an increased level of accountability for the quality of the group's work than other group members.

-Instead of the normal mid-term and final exam format, students taking this course for graduate credit will be required to complete more rigorous content examinations that will consist of essay questions.

-Students taking this course for graduate credit will complete a research-intensive paper that will require a review of relevant case law.

c. separate methods of evaluation for undergraduate and graduate students.

-The rubric used to assess the group presentations will be different for undergraduate and graduate students.

-Undergraduate students will take multiple choice and true/false question exams while graduate students will be assessed on the synthesis of course content into the answers on their essay exams.

-While undergraduates complete a formal and rigid writing assignment that corresponds with content from one specific unit of this course, students taking this course for graduate credit complete a more research-intensive paper on a topic of their choosing.

6. If applicable, indicate whether this course is writing-active, writing-intensive, or writing-centered, and describe how the course satisfies the criteria for the type of writing course identified. (See Appendix *.) N/A

PART IV: PURPOSE AND NEED

1. Explain the department’s rationale for developing and proposing the course.

Students in the sport management concentration receive a thorough and current background of legal concepts in Sport Law. This course helps students become equipped to face the risks and challenges of providing safe and healthy environments within the sport industry. Accordingly, the Commission on Sport Management Accreditation (COSMA) has identified legal aspects of sport as one of six Common Professional Content (CPC) topical areas for undergraduate sport management degree programs. Sport Law fulfills this requirement within our sport management concentration.

- a. If this is a general education course, you also must indicate the segment of the general education program into which it will be placed, and describe how the course meets the requirements of that segment.
- b. If the course or some sections of the course may be technology delivered, explain why.

An online version of the course is proposed to accommodate enrolled students who either live off campus or work during traditional hours when on-campus course sections are typically offered.

2. Justify the level of the course and any course prerequisites, co-requisites, or registration restrictions.

Course content applies and expounds upon knowledge from KSS 2761, which provides an introduction to essential sport/fitness management concepts and principles for all students within the sport management concentration. COSMA standards suggest that a Sport Law class be required for juniors or seniors completing a course of study in sport management.

3. If the course is similar to an existing course or courses, justify its development and offering.

No EIU course exists that focuses on legal aspects of sport.

- a. If the contents substantially duplicate those of an existing course, the new proposal should be discussed with the appropriate chairpersons, deans, or curriculum committees and their responses noted in the proposal.
- b. Cite course(s) to be deleted if the new course is approved. If no deletions are planned, note the exceptional need to be met or the curricular gap to be filled.

4. Impact on Program(s):

This course enhances the overall quality of the sport management concentration. In addition, this course brings the sport management concentration one step closer to existing COSMA accreditation standards. This course is required for KSS majors with the sport management concentration. Offering an occasional online section of the course will satisfy increasing demands from students for online courses and allow for enhanced off-campus outreach of the KSS department's academic programs.

- a. For undergraduate programs, specify whether this course will be required for a major or minor or used as an approved elective. This course will be required for all KSS students completing the sport management concentration
- b. For graduate programs, specify whether this course will be a core requirement for all candidates in a degree or certificate program or an approved elective. This course will be required in the KSS Sports Administration master's program if the student has not taken a sport law-focused course in an undergraduate program.

If the proposed course changes a major, minor, or certificate program in or outside of the department, you must submit a separate proposal requesting that change along with the course proposal. Provide a copy of the existing program in the current catalog with the requested changes noted.

PART V: IMPLEMENTATION

1. Faculty member(s) to whom the course may be assigned:

Dr. Chad Carlson or other qualified KSS sport management faculty. Online sections may be taught by faculty who have met the technology delivered policy of CAA.

If this is a graduate course and the department does not currently offer a graduate program, it must document that it employs faculty qualified to teach graduate courses.

2. Additional costs to students:

No additional cost beyond textbook rental.

Include those for supplemental packets, hardware/software, or any other additional instructional, technical, or technological requirements. (Course fees must be approved by the President's Council.)

3. Text and supplementary materials to be used (Include publication dates):

Spengler, John O., Paul M. Anderson, Daniel P. Connaughton, and Thomas A. Baker III. (2009). Introduction to Sport Law. Human Kinetics: Champaign, IL.

PART VI: COMMUNITY COLLEGE TRANSFER

If the proposed course is a 1000- or 2000-level course, state either, "A community college course may be judged equivalent to this course" OR "A community college course will not be judged equivalent to this course." A community college course will not be judged equivalent to a 3000- or 4000-level course but may be accepted as a substitute; however, upper-division credit will not be awarded.

PART VII: APPROVALS

Date approved by the department or school: January 18, 2013

Date approved by the college curriculum committee:

Date approved by the Honors Council (if this is an honors course):

Date approved by CAA: CGS:

*In writing-active courses, frequent, brief writing activities and assignments are required. Such activities -- some of which are to be graded -- might include five-minute in-class writing assignments, journal keeping, lab reports, essay examinations, short papers, longer papers, or a variety of other writing-to-learn activities of the instructor's invention. Writing assignments and activities in writing-active courses are designed primarily to assist students in mastering course content, secondarily to strengthen students' writing skills. In writing-intensive courses, several writing assignments and writing activities are required. These assignments and activities, which are to be spread over the course of the semester, serve the dual purpose of strengthening writing skills and deepening understanding of course content. At least one writing assignment is to be revised by the student after it has been read and commented on by the instructor. In writing-intensive courses, students' writing should constitute no less than 35% of the final course grade. In writing-centered courses (English 1001G, English 1002G, and their honors equivalents), students learn the principles and the process of writing in all of its stages, from inception to completion. The quality of students' writing is the principal determinant of the course grade. The minimum writing requirement is 20 pages (5,000 words).
