Dear Site Supervisor,

Thank you for agreeing to supervise a supervisee in the counseling program at Eastern Illinois University. Practicum and Supervised Clinical Experience (Internship) are the culminating activities in the training of our supervisees and as such, requires the application of the counselor's competencies in actual counseling experiences with client and/or supervisees. This is both an exciting and anxious time for our supervisees as they look to you to help them grow professionally and hone the craft of counseling.

Our hope is that you will approach supervision seriously and look to make a significant impact on the professional life of our supervisees. Like counseling, supervising is not easy and requires professionals who are committed to facilitating a “dyadic activity whereby the supervisor facilitates the provision of feedback to the supervisee, which is based on the interpersonal communication between both members of the dyad and can pertain to the work in supervision, the supervisee, the supervisee's clients, or the supervisor” (Ladany and Inman, in press). Bernard and Goodyear (2009) defined supervision this way:

Supervision is an intervention provided by a more senior member of a profession to a more junior member or members of that same profession. This relationship is evaluative, extends over time, and has the simultaneous purpose of enhancing the professional functioning of the more junior person(s), monitoring the quality of professional services offered to clients...serving as a gatekeeper for those who are to enter the particular profession (p.8).

So, this relationship involves evaluating, enhancing, monitoring, and gate-keeping over a prescribed length of time.

We know from research that a well-organized practicum or internship with a clear idea of what is expected will result in a satisfactory supervisory experience (Baird, 2011). Therefore, we encourage you to plan ahead concerning what you expect from the supervisee and how supervision will proceed.

Of course this challenge applies to us as well. We also need to provide the same principles to how we set up practicum and internship so that you are prepared to provide an excellent supervisory experience for our supervisees. For this reason, we have developed a manual that will provide guidelines and tools needed to complete this academic requirement. We encourage you to read the manual and let us know if you have any questions. Along with the contract, this manual is a critical step in ensuring that our supervisees have the best experience possible and provides a successful bridge to their professional careers.

According to Boylan & Scott (2009), there are certain factors interns have stated are important to their successful growth during practicum/internship:

» Clear expectations
» Standards of accountability
» Understanding the intern’s needs
» Being prepared for supervision
» Providing purposeful continuity
» Providing an equitable environment (if supervising more than one intern)

For this reason, this manual is designed to provide you with the minimum factors necessary to provide professional supervision for the supervisees.

Sincerely,

Dr. Gloria Leitschuh
Clinical Counseling Practicum/Internship Coordinator

According to Boylan & Scott (2009), there are certain factors interns have stated are important to their successful growth during practicum/internship:

- Clear expectations
- Standards of accountability
- Understanding the intern’s needs
- Being prepared for supervision
- Providing purposeful continuity
- Providing an equitable environment (if supervising more than one intern)

For this reason, this manual is designed to provide you with the minimum factors necessary to provide professional supervision for the Supervisees.

Practicum Introduction

Practicum is intended to combine course work with a 100 hour (a minimum of 40 hours of direct work with clients and 10 of these hours must include group counseling) field experience conducted in a setting as similar as possible to that in which Practicum supervisees subsequently intends to seek employment. The nature of this experience should be very much like that of a regular counseling position, but with intensive supervision both on-site and on-campus. Because the Practicum experience occurs after supervisees have mastered basic-level communication skills and have taken a pre-Practicum course, the emphasis at this stage of their development must be upon training rather than service provision. Practicum sites and supervisors play a pivotal role in helping supervisees begin the transition into their professional identities. For this reason, developing a Practicum plan with sufficient emphasis upon professional development is extremely important.

Internship Introduction

M.S. in Counseling (Clinical Mental Health) – 60 hour program:
Internship is intended to be an intensive 900 hour field experience over three consecutive semesters (300 hours each semester—120 hours of direct work with clients) conducted in a setting as similar as possible in which the supervisees subsequently intends to seek employment. The nature of this experience should be very much like that of a regular counseling position, but with closer supervision than is usually the case with an employed counselor. Internship should occur at the end of the training program, and the supervisees are expected to put into practice the knowledge and skills previously acquired in their program. The level of training at the point of entry into Internship will insure that the arrangement will be mutually beneficial to the site and to the supervisees.

Site Supervisor

Training and Experience

Site Supervisors will:

- have a minimum of a master’s degree in counseling or a related profession with equivalent qualifications, including appropriate certifications and/or licenses and two years of post-degree experience. Clinical agency supervisors should have two years of supervised clinical experience and be involved in acquiring 18 hours of mandated supervision training.

  Signing of the agreement signifies the guidelines have been read and understood (Appendix O).
Responsibilities

Site Supervisors will:

- read and sign the contract;
- act as a liaison to the Department of Counseling and Higher Education. All contact regarding the Supervisee will be addressed to the EIU Faculty Supervisor unless otherwise noted;
- arrange for a Supervisee orientation program and training for the purpose of familiarizing the Supervisee with the site’s philosophy, policies, and procedures. This includes case record management, confidentiality policy, adequate disclosure, crisis management, treatment protocol and termination procedures;
- provide the Supervisee access to opportunities for educational experiences including:
  » group and individual counseling
  » consultation with staff, agencies and families
  » assistance with appropriate interpretation of testing materials
  » access to case management meetings;
- provide feedback to Supervisees regarding legal and ethical guidelines governing each client;
- provide timely feedback to EIU Faculty Supervisor regarding concerns with Supervisee’s performance.

Rights

Site Supervisors have the right to:

- be made aware of the Practicum/Internship requirements;
- expect the Supervisee’s regular and punctual attendance for counseling services, supervision and other site-related activities;

- expect Supervisees to follow directives when they are given;

- consult with the EIU Faculty Supervisor on issues relevant to the Supervisee.
Requirements and Paperwork for PRACTICUM

- provide Supervisees with experiences that will help them prepare for employment in a comparable professional setting;
- assign and supervise tasks within the Supervisee’s capabilities. These tasks should be designed to allow the Supervisee to further develop counseling knowledge, attitudes, values and skills. This will include a total of 100 hours; a minimum of 40 hours of direct work with clients. Ten of the direct hours must include group counseling;
- provide space, equipment and supplies as needed by the Supervisee to carry out assignments. This should include clerical service for records if this service is provided for other staff;
- provide opportunities for the Supervisee to audio and/or video tape clients and/or group counseling sessions for the purpose of supervision during practicum. Written permission of clients immediately involved must be obtained (refer to Appendix H).

Removing a Supervisee from a Site

Personality, interpersonal, or other issues may interfere with a Supervisee success as a counselor. Because it is the responsibility of the department and EIU to both train and protect the public from harm, it is possible that a Supervisee may be asked to remediate any such issues should they persist to negatively impact their development as a counselor and their work with students. Introduction
This Internship is intended to be an intensive 300 hour field experience conducted in a setting as similar as possible in which the supervisees subsequently intends to seek employment. Any additions, deletions or other changes of this agreement can only be implemented with the written consent of the site and CHE. Client Case Summary

NAME: JANE DOE  GENDER: Female
DATE: 4/15/07  MARITAL STATUS: Single
REFERRED BY: Self-Referral  LIVING STATUS: Currently living alone in an apartment in Brookings, SD
AGE: 25

PRESENTING PROBLEM: Client presented with long history of depressive symptomology, anxiety, and bulimia. She related her current situation to long-standing family dynamics described as rigid, overbearing, controlling, and perfectionistic.

INITIAL GOALS FOR THERAPY: Client would like some alleviation from her ongoing problems with depression and her eating disorder.

BRIEF HISTORY:

Family History: Client is a 25 year old white female from the Brookings, South Dakota area. Client described her family of origin as rigid, overbearing, controlling, and perfectionistic. The family was very religious and "took great pains to appear righteous to outsiders."

Client called recurring situations where mother was dissatisfied with client, especially concerning physical appearance. Her mother was described as overbearing and rigid, pulling the client out of class on a daily basis for inspection. Another significant event described by the client was when her mother asked her to choose between gymnastics and ice skating. Although the client chose gymnastics, her mother made her take ice skating lessons instead. Client was taken out of school for several years to practice eight hours a day. Later, mother made her quit ice skating to return to high school like other "normal" kids her age. It was during this transition period back into school that the client's anorexic phase began. Two years later she developed bulimia.

Client was reluctant to talk about her father but described him as nice. Client ran away from home at 18 and moved to California and later Arizona. The client's father found her in Arizona and asked her to move back to Portland. Client moved back to Oregon and secured a job as a process control engineer employed by a local utility company. While working there she was raped by a fellow employee.

School/Occupational History: Client reports having few friends in high school with one or two boyfriends, all of whom were eventually dropped by client. Client reported being engaged to one individual but had to end the relationship because he would not understand her problems. Most of the male relationships have been described by client as sexual in nature. Client has attended several colleges but always drops out due to severe anxiety about school performance. Client is currently enrolled at SDSU and has maintained attendance through the semester so far.

Social History: As described earlier, client has had few friends and usually takes the initiative to end the relationship. She stated she thinks of herself as unworthy and unable to live up to her friends' expectations so she simply ends the relationship.

Therapeutic History: Her parents requested client move to Colorado to enter therapy at a well-known treatment facility. The hospital treated her in-patient for 11 weeks beginning in January of 2003. Client was first treated for severe depression but later was shifted to out-patient treatment for bulimia. This treatment lasted for eight months and was perceived by client as not being helpful. She dropped out of therapy when her therapists diagnosed her as having Dissociative Identity Disorder. She moved to South Dakota to begin school and is currently seeing the present therapist for cognitive developmental therapy.

Medical History: Client reported no unusual medical problems and denies alcohol or drug problem. No head trauma or childhood illnesses were acknowledged. She is currently taking no psychotropic medication.

MENTAL STATUS:
Appearance: Client was casually but nearly dressed (appropriate for supervisee attire) for initial interview. Although outward appearance was portrayed as cheerful and positive, client self-reported she was severely depressed and agitated.

Attitude: Client utilized many modes of impression management as she actively worked to portray herself in a positive light. She quickly deflected any attempt on the part of the therapist to suggest severe problems.

Behavior: Client was passive but cautious and guarded in the way she responded to any direct questions. She also appeared lethargic and would rarely look at the therapists unless her depression, eating disorder, or anxiety were mentioned.

Mood and Affect: Client stated she was depressed with little interest in school. Client's behavior and body posture suggests she was feeling depressed. Client appeared fatigued and lethargic throughout the interview.
Speech and Thought Content: Client was clearly oriented to time, place, and person. Client was reluctant to talk about herself and seemed preoccupied with the therapist’s evaluation of her behavior. Client’s speech was cautious with a tendency to cut herself off if she thought the therapist might want to ask a question.

Perception: Client denied any hallucinations or illusions. Her self-perception was accurate, albeit guarded and cautious.

Intellectual and Cognitive Processes: Client demonstrated no signs of mania, psychosis, and schizophrenic disorders. Tempo was consistent with depressed speech but organization was intact. Although no formal intellectual testing was done, client appeared to be of normal intellect.

DIAGNOSIS:

Diagnostic Symptoms Reported: Client reported prolonged (over 2 weeks) depressed mood and loss of interest, diminished ability to concentrate in school, psychomotor retardation, feelings of worthlessness, and loss of appetite and sleep. Client also reported eating disorder symptoms not specified by either anorexia or binge eating behavior. Client reported inappropriate compensatory behavior after eating a small amount of food. Purging is regular and often and suggest the need for immediate medical attention.

| AXIS V  | GAF-51 moderate to several symptomology with few coping skills. |

T.R.E.A.T. PLAN

Theoretical and Conceptual Variables:

Diagnostic Variables: This is presented on all five axes on the intake interview suggesting a baseline for treatment and an indicator of severity and chronicity.

Non-Diagnostic Variables: Client presents with pervasive pattern of social discomfort, fear of negative evaluation, and timidity. The client’s cognitive regulating system was formulated under an adverse family constellation. Mother’s perfectionistic expectations and subsequent rejection influenced client’s belief that the world expects perfection from client but will never be satisfied with her performance. Father’s sexual molestation effectively damaged client’s secure attachment base from which healthy self-esteem is built. Consequently, detachment skills (skills that would help client overcome avoidance tendencies are poor and underdeveloped and weak fragile ego system is present. Because client expects to be rejected, she tends to be hypervigilant to any possible sign of rejection and tends to over interpret innocuous behavior as a threat.

In conjunction with the avoidant personality information is the client’s pervasive pattern of submissive, dependent behavior. This information can be explained since her parents were dominant and effective in violating the client’s personal and psychological boundaries. The client responded to their advances in a passive manner and continues to see parents and other authority figures as all powerful and perfect and herself as inadequate and flawed.

The client does present (self-refers) for therapy to alleviate the distress caused by the depressive and eating disorder symptoms. The client has no support system. She reports few friends, has a new university environment in which to adjust, has a seemingly rigid family or origin, and is currently living alone.

Even though the depressive symptoms and eating disorder are of long-standing duration, the client does continue to function at some level in daily living. She is currently attending classes regularly at SDSU this semester; she has some insight into the distress and pain in her life indicated by her self-referral for therapeutic assistance.

Evaluation: Medical evaluation is currently being conducted regarding and usage of medication for both depressive symptoms and eating disorder. The psychiatrist is willing to work in conjunction with this therapist and concurs with the combination of individual and group treatment for her depression and eating disorder.
A release of client's past medical and psychological records form the treatment facility in Colorado was requested. The results of psychological testing at that time revealed serious pathology with little coping skills. Characteristic traits on the MMPI suggested somatic complaints, sleep and eating disturbances, and feelings of hopelessness consistent with depression. Several other scales suggested a tendency toward a schizoid life style, aloofness, feelings of inferiority, and self-doubt. The MCMI suggested an avoidance-dependent personality formation with self-defeating tendencies. The client may want to gain the attention of others not only by appearing in an attractive light but also by exposing her troubled state. Some secondary gain from the disorders may be a consideration.

Relationship Variables:
A supportive relationship with empathy, warmth, acceptance, and genuineness will be critical with this client. Given the past family history and pre-morbid personality characteristics of the client, the ability to form a working alliance will be tenuous. The client is clear about her desire to treat her depression and eating disorder. An attempt has been made to be clear and straightforward about treatment expectations and goals without overwhelming her with what appears to be very long treatment needs. It may also be very difficult to develop an emotional bond since the client is likely to assume that the therapist is as perfectionistic as her parents are and she may be eventually disappointed in her performance as a client. The therapist will attempt to anticipate this transference and prevent premature termination. Therapeutic contracting may be very useful as well as role induction and videos showing pre-therapy modeling.

Environment Variables:
Setting: Outpatient at the University clinic. Monitoring for behaviors which may warrant a more restrictive placement will be continuous.

Mode: Individual therapy using Cognitive Developmental therapy to treat her depressive symptoms in conjunction with partial care group therapy for treatment of her eating disorder.

Timing: Although the client is limited to eight (8) sessions by university policy, approval for additional sessions has been arranged. Referral strategies have been discussed with the client including the possibility of rehospitalization for inpatient treatment if needed. She is currently being seen two times a week for 50 minutes sessions.

Adjunct Services:
Although she resists any attempts for inpatient treatment at this time hospitalization may be considered if her eating disorder worsens or if she becomes suicidal. Currently she has agreed to enter a nearby hospital’s partial care program for eating disorders. This group treatment meets three times a week in the evening.

Treatment Goals and Strategies:

Goals:
Prognosis for this client’s presenting symptomology is not good particularly due to the chronicity as well as to the probable underlying personality disorders. Briefly, formalized testing revealed serious pathology with little coping skills. Several scales suggested a schizoid life style, aloofness, feelings of inferiority and self-doubt. This client also presented an avoidance-dependent personality formation of self-defeating tendencies. Suicidal and/or regressive behaviors will be closely monitored.

Realistic goals and objectives may be to: address the seriousness of the eating disorder and reduce significantly the amount of purging behavior; have her remain in school all semester as a measure of academic success; get her involved in one or two activities to develop some socialization skills; begin replacing negative self-talk with positive rationale statements several times a day, a joint a support system for ongoing maintenance of therapeutic gains.

Techniques:
The treatment protocol will follow the goals of therapy. As mentioned earlier, the client has been bulimic since the age of eighteen. Although the client has been in treatment on several occasions, her purging behavior has not been altered. Group and medication therapy will be the treatment modality and services rendered in a partial care facility.

A behavioral checklist will be utilized to promote beneficial academic skills. The client will also be responsible for recording thoughts and behaviors that may lead to academic failure. Study and social skills groups will be utilized to improve self-concept.

In treating the depressive symptoms a model of cognitive therapy will be used focusing on cognitive restructuring, emotional differentiation and behavioral enhancement. Long term restructuring of client’s cognitive regulating system will be attempted. Given the client’s propensity to self-damaging messages, the client will be assisted in restructuring her past concentrating on recognizing ego-enhancing skills utilized to survive. The client will be assisted in developing a realistic evaluation of present experiences. The client’s feelings will be acknowledged and evaluated for congruency. Lastly, she will be encouraged to expand her behavioral repertoire to include more functional reactions to life stressors and events.
The client’s testing revealed avoidance and dependent personality traits suggesting a slow pace for self-disclosure or change. An attempt will be made to let the client move at her own pace while concurrently exploring past history and suggesting cognitive restructuring opportunities. Ego-enhancing exercises will also be attempted to convince client of her own efficacy in solving problems. A support group will be highly recommended to maintain therapeutic gains.

Common Challenges Faced by Beginning Counselors
Common Challenges Faced by Beginning Counselors

Beginning counselors have a tendency to:

» Feel like they have to come up with quick solutions for their clients
» Worry about "what they are going to say next"
» Worry about what their clients think about them
» Feel like they have to be an expert
» Talk too fast or too much
» Doubt their abilities
» Have difficulty believing that just by listening they are helping » Give advice
» Make evaluative statements (both positive and negative)
» Worry that others (peers/instructors) will see them as incompetent

Some tips for beginning counselors:

» Slow down….
» Don’t feel like you have to have the answers…just listen and get comfortable interacting with your client
» Be yourself
» Listen….
» Trust your instincts
» Remember that just caring is powerful and helpful
» Acknowledge and be proud of yourself for taking on this amazing challenge
» Be patient with yourself. Your skills will continue to develop. ☺
