

Three of our Students to Present at the National Conferences on Undergraduate Research Conference

The National Conferences on Undergraduate Research (NCUR), established in 1987, is dedicated to promoting undergraduate research, scholarship, and creative activity in all fields of study by sponsoring an annual conference for students. Three undergraduate students, Dylan Dilley (pictured on the left), Meghan Briscoe (pictured in the middle), and Valerie Metz (pictured on the right) have all been selected to present at the Conference April 3-5. Valerie Metz will be presenting on the “Accuracy of and Representation within the Historical Content of Children’s Literature.” Meghan Briscoe will be presenting on “Examining and Supplementing the Historical Representation of the Civil Rights Movement within Children’s Literature.” Dylan Dilley will be presenting on “Investigating Amelia Earhart in Children’s Literature.” In addition, Meghan and Dr. Bickford submitted “Assessing the Historical (Mis)Representations of the Civil Rights Movement within Children’s Literature” to Journal of Social Studies Research. JSSR is a peer-reviewed, international, research-based journal.
