

New Faculty - Dr. Deborah Harrison

Welcome our new faculty member, Dr. Deborah Harrison. Dr. Harrison, originally from Indiana, received her Bachelor's Degree from Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis and both her Master's and Doctorate Degree from Ball State University in Indiana as well. After receiving her degrees she taught for 12 years in Elementary Education in Indiana as well as one year in Georgia. Dr. Harrison has taught in higher education for thirteen years, teaching at different universities across the country including Northern Wisconsin. Having heard great things about the teaching program here at Eastern, she was eager to interview. Dr. Harrison said when she interviewed that she immediately felt at home and knew that Eastern would be the perfect fit for her. Dr. Harrison specializes in teaching literacy courses and loves the classes that she gets to teach here at Eastern. She loves being part of such a well-known and highly recognized program in the teaching field. Along with teaching, Dr. Harrison has also taken upon the role as the Vice President for the East Central-EIU Reading Council and is also a co-faculty advisor for the Student Reading Council.
