Rationale, Justifications, and Assurances (Part I)

1. □ Course is required for the major(s) of B.M. in Music and B.A. in Music.
   □ Course is required for the minor(s) of ______________ □ Course is required for the certificate program(s) of ______________ □ Course is used as an elective

2. Rationale for proposal:
   The revision of this course is part of the Music Department’s revision of the Music History sequence. It consolidates the three-semester survey into two semesters, which will be preceded by this course, MUS 3593G Survey of Musical Masterworks, Honors. This will provide students with both a large-scale overview of historical/musical currents and an introduction to studying music history. Many university music programs are moving to a sequence, which provides students with a broad overview of music history before studying various musical periods in depth. In addition, this change will make it easier for our transfer students, who often have taken an equivalent course at their institution.

   We are also requesting online delivery of this course. We believe this upper-level general education course will be of interest to students in the Bachelor of General Studies program.

3. Justifications for (answer N/A if not applicable)
   - Similarity to other courses: N/A
   - Prerequisites: NA
   - Co-requisites: N/A
   - Enrollment restrictions: N/A
   - Writing active, intensive, centered:
     This course is writing intensive. More than 35% of the course grade is determined from written work. Essay questions are included in all exams, and students complete two, ten-page papers over the course of the semester, including a draft-stage so that students can complete a revisions following suggestions offered by the instructor.

4. General education assurances (answer N/A if not applicable)
   - General education component:
     Survey of Musical Masterworks will continue to be offered in the Fine Arts and Humanities segment of the General Education program. In this course, the student will encounter an important body of musical works and become aware of the criteria by which music is appreciated. Course material will be presented in its appropriate historical context and provide the mechanics for students to participate in critical evaluation through writing and conversing about music. In this way, this course provides an appreciation for the fine arts and links the past with the present by a study of changes in the methods of artistic expression associated with music. Further, the variety of musical styles covered in this course will provide insights into the many different ways that music is encountered in the modern world.
   - Curriculum: Please see parts 3 and 8 of the model syllabus for learning objectives and their relation to the learning goals at EIU, focusing especially on Critical Thinking, Writing and Critical Reading.
   - Instruction: This course involves a classroom-based lecture three days a week (three hours total). The learning goals and objectives of this course are explicitly explored during these face-to-face instruction periods. In the online version, online lectures and readings combined with Discussion Forum Assignments and possibly video presentations by students
Assessment: Please see parts 3 and 8 of the model syllabus for learning objectives and their relation to the learning goals at EIU, focusing especially on Critical Thinking, Writing and Critical Reading. Assessment will be in the form of exams, papers, and participation.

5. Online/Hybrid delivery justification & assurances (answer N/A if not applicable)

   Online or hybrid delivery justification:
   The electronic version of MUS 3593G is designed to utilize EIU’s online course management system. An online version of this course has been requested by the School of Continuing Education for students in the BGS program.

   Instruction:
   Students will be introduced to guidelines for successful navigation of the course management software and will receive a tutorial on good discussion practices. In addition to student posts to the discussion forum, students will also be required to respond to posts written by their peers. The instructor will monitor class discussions. The instructor has designed the technology delivered sections of the course with many of the guidelines from Palloff and Pratt’s Building Online Learning Communities in mind.

   Integrity:
   Exams will utilize a strict time limit and course management technology will change the order of the questions and the numbering of the answers in the multiple choice questions. In some cases students will receive entirely different questions. Once the exam has begun students will have a relatively short time frame (60-120 minutes) to complete the entire exam. In the case of essays and writing projects, web- based technology may be deployed, e.g. Turnitin, Duplachecker, etc.

   Interaction:
   Students will be encouraged to communicate with the instructor via the course management system’s email feature. Additionally, web-based discussions are an important component of the course. The course may utilize Elluminate, or other web- conferencing software, to facilitate class interaction.
