The Annual Newsletter of the History Department at Eastern Illinois University
Charleston, IL July 2002

Letter from the Chair, 2002

Greetings, Alumni and Friends!

Teacher Certification was our highest priority this past year as the department 1) successfully gained re-accreditation by NCATE (National Council for the Assessment of Teacher Education), and (2) worked to remodel its teacher certification programs to meet a challenging new set of guidelines and requirements issued by the Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE). Both are large accomplishments. The first requires no explanation; the second does as it is resulting in major changes to our programs starting in Fall 2002.

The changes mandated by the ISBE are two-fold. First, the ISBE would like to see new teachers trained to teach a broader range of subjects than in the past, so that rather than preparing biology, history, or English teachers, universities will be preparing (general) sciences, social sciences, or language arts teachers. The students wanting to become Social Science teachers must take coursework in all of the following areas: economics, geography, history, political science, psychology, and sociology/ anthropology. At the same time, each student will be designating a major area on which to focus (which, for many if not most students, will be history). Since in our department we have long offered parallel majors in History with Teacher Certification and Social Sciences with Teacher Certification, our challenge was to combine the best of both of these programs without overwhelming the students with required semester hours. With the cooperation and collaboration of the chairs and curriculum committees in all of the social science departments, we managed to develop new curricula for our future teachers that can be completed in just four-and-a-half years (including the student teaching semester), but which still cover material with the necessary breadth. This was not an easy task! The second part of the ISBE's mandate is that all teacher certification candidates pass extensive standardized tests covering all the areas within their curriculum to demonstrate their competence. We have every confidence that our students will be prepared to do this, and our department will build on its reputation for producing the best history and social science teachers in the state.

I should express special thanks to Charles Titus, the director of our teacher certification programs in history and the social sciences, for his hard and successful work preparing our portfolios for NCATE and leading our curriculum revisions for the ISBE. I would also like to acknowledge the dedication of our faculty, especially on the departmental curriculum committee, who took on the task of re-thinking the curriculum with energy and creativity. Proof of their effectiveness is that the ISBE has been holding up EIU's history and social science program revisions as models for our counterparts elsewhere in the state to follow.

Changing the subject completely, it is my pleasure to introduce the newest member of the faculty in our history department: Michelle Lemaster, Ph.D. from Johns Hopkins, will join us in the Fall to teach colonial and revolutionary America. Dr. Lemaster's research focuses on Indian-white relations in the colonial southeast. She will enhance our curriculum with courses on Native American history and possibly comparative colonial history, and bring the perspectives of race and gender to the standard colonial and revolutionary America surveys. We are looking forward to welcoming her.

Finally, I want to turn to you, the alumni of our programs in History and Social Science, and thank you for your continued financial support. Our fund-raising campaign last year raised

The History Department's Newest Professors

by Brian Gordon

The History Department welcomes two new professors who just completed their first year at Eastern Illinois.

Dr. José Deustua is a specialist in Andean and Latin American History and Sociology, a native of Peru, with a doctorate from the University of Paris. He wrote his dissertation on "Mines, Money, and Men in the Andes: an Economic and Social History of Mining in Peru in the Nineteenth Century," which became the basis for his book The Bewitchment of Silver: Mining and the Social Economy in 19th-century Peru (Athens, Ohio, 2000). His languages include Spanish, French, English, Quechua, Portuguese, and Italian. Currently, he is completing a project about mercury mining and the social economy in the 19th-century Peru. He also has been invited to present papers at the XIII International Congress of Economic History in Buenos Aires, and at the U.S. Mining History Association's next meeting in Wallace, Peru. His next project will take him to Mexico to elaborate on a comparative mining export history between that nation and Andean Peru. He teaches courses in Latin American history and also has been very active this year on the building of EIU Latin American and Latino Studies Committee (he was named its Secretary in Spring 2002). Professor Deustua is looking forward to recruiting new history students interested in those fields for Eastern's Master of Arts in History program.

Dr. Scott Levi comes to us from the University of Wisconsin in Madison, with a major field of study in South Asian History and a minor field in Cultural Anthropology. His dissertation became the basis of his recently-published book,

The Indian Diaspora in Central Asia and its Trade, 1550-1900 (Leiden, 2002). His languages include Hindu, Urdu, Persian, Russian, and various Turkic dialects. Dr. Levi has lived, traveled, and researched in such places as India and Uzbekistan. During the 2001-02 academic year, he delivered a number of papers, including one at an invited workshop on "Territorialism in the Middle East" at the European University Institute in Florence. He teaches courses on world history, the making of the Islamic World, and Terrorism. Dr. Levi returned to Tashkent, Uzbekistan this summer to conduct research for his next book, tentatively titled, Khoqand: from Khanate to Colony in the Farghana Valley.

Terry A. Barnhart published a book chapter, two journal articles, three book reviews, presented papers, and served as a commentator at a historical conference this past year. His essay "Toward a Science of Man: European Influences on the Archaeology of Ephraim George Squier" appeared in New Perspectives on the Origins of Americanist Archaeology, ed. David L. Browman and Stephen Williams (University of Alabama, 2002). He presented "'Elegant and Useful Learning': The Antiquarian and Historical Society of Illinois, 1827-1829" at the 22nd Annual Illinois History Symposium at Springfield in November 2001, which forms part of the Spring 2002 Journal of the Illinois State Historical Society. His "Educating the Masses: The Normal-School Movement and the Origins of Eastern Illinois University, 1895-1899" appeared in Journal of Illinois History (Autumn 2001). He presented "'A Common Feeling': Regional Identity and Historical Consciousness in the Old Northwest" at the 2002 Great Lakes American Studies Conference, Ohio University, Athens, April 12, 2002. Dr. Barnhart was promoted from associate professor to professor in April 2002, and continues to teach actively in the undergraduate program and the M.A. in Historical Administration Program.

Roger Beck was reelected as Treasurer to the World History Association in January. He gave a talkback following the performance of "Master Harold and the Boys." Last summer, he chaired a panel for the World History Association in Salt Lake City. He had a chapter published in Christian Missionaries and the State in Third World, entitled "Cape Colonial Officials and Christian Missionaries in the early Nineteenth Century." He finished the 2nd edition of a 9th and 10th grade World History textbook entitled World History: Patterns of Introduction.

Joy Kammerling had numerous book reviews published this year. She referred submitted articles for the journal Church History. She continued work on her book Andreas Osiander and the Jews, to be published by Concordia Academic Press. She was awarded the Dean of Adult and Continuing Education's Award for Service for Teachers and was nominated for the Distinguished Honors Faculty Award.

Newton Key finished the last of his biographies for the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography, forthcoming in 2004, and he and his co-author Robert Bucholz submitted the manuscript for Early Modern England: A Narrative History to Blackwell Publishers, and have nearly completed the companion sourcebook. He also presented talks on social revolution (in Chicago, also solicited for a book collection), feasts (in Toronto), and Monmouth magistrates (in Houston). He continues as book review editor of H-Albion, and as webmaster of the department, of Localitiés/Localities, and of the Midwest Conference on British Studies. Perhaps the high point of teaching this year, which included British History, Revolutions, and Historical Publications, was taking the latter class to R.R. Donnelley's Mattoon plant which prints, binds, and mails out some 20 million magazines each month.

John McElligott has been spending his time developing a new course on the Seventeenth Century Scientific Revolution.

Andrew Nolan taught classes in colonial and Revolutionary America and on the U.S. Constitution. He successfully defended his dissertation at the University of Illinois on the Scopes Trial, and is working on an article that explores historical memory as a living monument embedded within ongoing cultural discussions about the nature of national identity. He accepted a position at the University of Nevada, Reno, where he will teach the history of the Gilded Age and Progressive Era. He has enjoyed being a member of our Department and will miss all its members.

Onaiwu W. Ogbomo published "The Evolution of an Ethnic Identity: The Owan of Midwestern Nigeria," in The Transformation of Nigeria, ed. Adebayo Oyeibade (Trenton, 2002). He curated a photographic exhibit on African Americans in Coles County (see

History Teachers Conference Fall 2001

by Jen Hyser

The History Department hosted the twenty-second annual History Teachers Conference in the Martin Luther King, Jr. University Union on 10 October. Middle and High School level history and social studies teachers enjoyed a number of presentations relating to the conference's theme "Exploring Pathways to Excellence." Keynote speaker Mr. Tom Vance, Site Manager of the Lincoln Log Cabin Historic Site, gave a talk on "Hands on History: Using Historic Sites as Experiential History Laboratories." Other presenters included:

- Richard Hansen of Mt. Zion High School who demonstrated how artifacts can be used in history classes;
- Dr. Fred Isele of Western Illinois University's Regional Center at Moline who presented "E-Packs," and "Powerful Delivery of Social Studies Standards";

Henry H. Glassie—Distinguished Speaker at 25th Annual HA Symposium

Henry H. Glassie, noted folklorist, author, and professor at Indiana University reflected on 25 years of material culture studies at the 25th Annual Symposium of EIU's Historical Administration Program. Glassie challenged the 64 registrants to overcome the criticisms levied against museums—that they are capitalist, colonialist, western-centric, and conservative—by contextualizing objects so they can tell evocative stories of makers, consumers, and communities.

Three museum professionals followed, each addressing the conference topic, "the Ever Changing Museum Field." Nancy Bryk, Curator of Domestic Life at Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village, focused on the importance of flexibility. Maria Quine Leiby, Curator of Exhibits at the Michigan Historical Museum, described the changes that occurred at the Detroit Historical Society, and the ways that different meanings of history and memories of the past shape collections. Tara Williams, Counselor at the Family Service Association, discussed trends in non-profit management over the past 25 years.

The symposium concluded with a banquet and auction to support the Historical Administration Program Association's scholarship fund.

Phi Alpha Theta Regional History Conference

by Jen Hyser

On Saturday, April 20, 2002 Eastern's Epsilon-Mu chapter hosted Phi Alpha Theta's combined Southern and Northern Illinois Regional History Conference in Buzzard Hall. The event was attended by members, alumni, and faculty advisors from Eastern Illinois University, Bradley University, Illinois State University, McKendree College, Northern Illinois University, Rockford College, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. Students presented 27 papers on a variety of topics; Eastern was well represented with presentations by Harley Jones, Mirjam Mueller, and Louis Baczewski.

Phi Alpha Theta National Representative Dr. Gregory Guzman addressed the conference with a report on recent national level news and changes within the society. The convention concluded with an awards ceremony, at which Eastern Illinois' Louis Baczewski was awarded second prize in the category of undergraduate United States history for his paper on the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers local 309, 1965-2002. Faculty Advisor Dr. Michael Shirley made concluding remarks thanking the all those involved for helping to make the conference a success. Particularly indispensable to Dr. Shirley in organizing the conference was outgoing Epsilon-Mu Chapter President, Teresa Cribelar. David Bell will be the next Chapter President for Epsilon-Mu.

Dr. Michael Shirley awards Lou Baczewski second prize for undergraduate U.S. history paper.

Phi Alpha Theta Banquet and Student Awards

by Jen Hyser

On April 19, 2002, Epsilon Mu, Eastern Illinois' chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, and Eastern's History Club co-hosted the annual History Department Banquet, at Richard's Farm in Casey. Featured speaker Dr. Alfred J. Andrea, Distinguished Scholar-In-Residence at the University of Louisville, delivered a slide lecture on "Crusaders as Viewed by Byzantines and Muslims." Dr. Andrea, who oversees Phi Alpha Theta's annual student journal competition, also noted Eastern's repeated fine submissions in that contest (see Historia article). Epsilon Mu inducted Louis Baczewski, Michael Balestri, Lauren Berggren, related article). At a conference on Fatherhood Today in the African Diaspora held in October in Halifax, Canada, he presented a paper titled "Fatherhood in African American Families: A Historical Perspective." In November 2001 at the African Studies Association annual meeting in Houston Texas, he gave a paper on "British Colonial Forestry Policy in Benin Province, Nigeria, 1897 to 1960," and in March 2002 at a conference on Nigeria in Austin he gave a presentation on "The Colonizers and 'The Natives': Isolation and Exclusion Practices in Colonial Nigeria."

Debra A. Reid coordinated a new project in material culture documentation during Fall 2001 that involved graduate students in the Historical Administration program, staff of the Illinois Amish Interpretive Center, and Amish residents in Arthur and Arcola. She published the following: "It Takes Two: Interpreting Women and Men at Open Air Museums in the Midwest," Midwest Open Air Magazine, 22, 3 (Fall 2001); "African-Americans, Community Building, and the Role of the State in Rural Reform in Texas, 1890's-1930's," in The Countryside in the Age of the Modern State: Political Histories of Rural America, ed. Catherine McNicol Stock and Robert D. Johnson (Cornell University Press); "The Negro Extension Service in Texas and Biological Progress in Agriculture 1915-1935," Biological Progress in Agriculture, Proceedings of CIMA XII: The International Congress of Agricultural Museums, Poznan, Poland, 12-16 October 1998 (National Museum of Agriculture and Food Industry, Szreniawa); and a couple of pieces in the Fall 2001 ALHFAM Bulletin (Association for Living History Farms and Agricultural Museums). She presented papers at several history and museum studies conferences including the third Who Owns America? conference sponsored by the Land Tenure Center at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, the 2001 ALHFAM conference in Williamsburg, the triennial meeting of IAMA in Linlar, Germany, and the Fall 2001 MOMCC conference in Grayling, Michigan. as the United States Alternate to the Presidium of the Association Internationale Des Musees' D'Agriculture an organizational affiliate of the International Council of Museums. She continues as the treasurer for the Rural Women's Studies Association and the Midwest Open Air Museums Coordinating Council, and as publications chair for ALHFAM.

Rick Riccio designed several exhibits and displays for the Morton Arboretum, Jane Addams Hull House, Cahokia Mounds State Historic Site, and Lincoln Log Cabin State Historic Site. At the former, his design of the Big Rock Visitor Station won an Illinois Museum Association Superior Achievement Award.

Anita Shelton, now completing her seventh(!) year as chair, was nominated this year by the College of Arts and Humanities as Chair of the Year. In addition to her usual chairing duties, she has written several book reviews and is completing a chapter for a collection of Polish historians of the 19th and 20th centuries. She helped to design a new secondary teacher certification and the social science department (she implemented Fall semester Chair). She also helped to design a new exhibit that gained the college a national award. One of the newest professors in the History Department has hit the ground running. Dr. Onaiwu Wilson Ogbomo, Associate Professor of History and director of the Eastern Illinois University African American Studies program, started working at Eastern Illinois in Fall 2000 and immediately began collecting images and information on the African Americans in Coles County.

As a result of his work, the exhibit "Photographic Images and the History of African Americans in Coles County" was hosted by the Tarble Arts Center from January through March. The exhibit presented the wide range of photographs Dr. Ogbomo compiled from family albums, church archives, Eastern Illinois University archives, newspapers, and the Coles County Historical Society. At the exhibit's opening on January 31, 2002 guest speaker Dr. Marianne Woods, spoke about a similar exhibit she produced with Dr. Ogbomo's assistance, "A Significant Past: Photographs of African Americans in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, 1850-1950." Dr. Ogbomo himself presented a curator's lecture on the subject on February 20.

The photographs and an essay will be available shortly at the African-American studies website <<http://www.eiu.edu/~afriamer/>> and and Localités/Localities website, <<http://www.eiu.edu/~localite/>>.

Sketches of Summertime: An Exhibit

by Laurie Peterson

How dynamic was an 1840s family on the Illinois prairie during the summertime? The answer to this question is found in Lincoln Log Cabin's newest exhibit, "Sketches of Summertime: Family Life on the 1840s Illinois Prairie." Historical Administration students planned and built this exhibit, which is the latest in a series of exhibits examining life on the prairie through the four seasons.

The exhibit takes visitors through one day in the life of an 1840s family. Morning begins with the painstaking task of hauling water from the well to do the laundry and other household chores. An interactive exhibit provides visitors with a chance to experience the daunting task of hauling water. Also included are displays on Summer agricultural activities, the noon-time family dinner, wood-working, the Fourth of July celebration, and 1840s sleeping habits. Each display includes

History Club

by Angela Chard

Eastern's History Club has been busy. Students attended two public lectures: Dr. Scott Levi on Terrorism and Dr. Dan McMillan on the Holocaust. The History Club also sponsored several films, including Glory in the Spring Semester. After the September 11th attacks, the History Club made a contribution to the United Way of New York to assist the families of the victims.

For further History Club information check out their bulletin board, which posts information on history topics, faculty biographies, and Mysteries in History. The club also publishes a newsletter "History as it Happens," and maintains a History Club page at the address <http://www.eiu.edu/~history/historyclub/>.

April might be the cruelest month, but not for the attendees of the week-long Graduate Student Exposition and culminating award ceremony. At the 2002 Distinguished Graduate Student Reception, Genia Hesser and Mirjam Mueller received Distinguished Graduate Student Awards for Historical Administration and History respectively. (Mirjam also received the Distinguished International Student Award for History.) Incoming MA in History student David Bell (just completing his Eastern BA in History and Social Science) received this year's Frances Meyer Hampton Graduate Scholarship ($20,000 for two-year's study), in a university-wide competition. Last year's awardee of a Graduate School Research/Creativity Award, Christopher Bailey, successfully defended his thesis on Saxo Grammaticus this April. Further, Mirjam Mueller and Aaron Osborne presented a poster on the "Top Five" legal cases in Coles County, 1800-1900, which they had developed for a student research day at Springfield, and are now turning into an online pedagogical exercise as part of Localités/Localities <http://www.eiu.edu/~localite>. Rob Martin, Peter Noll, Genia Hesser, and Nathan Kemler gave a PowerPoint presentation on selected projects done by this year's Historical Administration class.

Nora Pat Small's book manuscript, Beauty and Convenience: Architecture and Order in the New Republic, has been accepted for publication by the University of Tennessee Press. The anticipated publication date is Spring 2003. She is completing her first year as Historical Administration Program Coordinator, and is looking forward to welcoming the H.A. class of 2002-03. Dr. Small and her husband, Rick Riccio, have purchased the old farmhouse formerly owned by Dr. Duane Elbert near Lincoln Log Cabin, and so will never lack for historic preservation projects of their own.

David Smith has been busy with numerous activities. He taught the department's "technology enhanced" course—an investigation of the history of the Atlantic Slave Trade. He has continued his work directing the web-based organization for professional historians of France, H-France, serving as book review editor and as list editor, as well as overseeing a structural re-organization of the organization. He also has been busy with copy editors in seeing to completion a two-volume collection of primary source documents, The West and the Wider World, which will appear from Bedford Books in August 2002 and his "Structuring Politics in Early Eighteenth-Century France: The Political Innovations of the French Council of Commerce" will be published in the Journal of Modern History in September 2002.

Charles Titus wrote a book review of Perryville: This Grand Havoc of Battle for the Journal of Illinois History. He served as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Coles County Historical Society, and on the Board of Directors of the Excellence in Education Foundation, as well as advisor to the History Club (see related article), and on the ROTC Advisory Council. He organized the 22nd Annual History Teachers Conference (see related article) and teaches Illinois History, Military History, and Teaching Methods.

Mark Voss-Hubbard this Fall both took over as Graduate Program Coordinator and finished his book, Beyond Party: Cultures of Antipartisanship in Northern Politics Before the Civil War (forthcoming from The Johns Hopkins University Press). He also completed "Third Parties in American Presidential Elections," forthcoming this December in American Presidential Campaigns & Elections, ed. William G. Shade and Ballard C. Campbell (M.E. Sharpe). In addition, he published book reviews in the Journal of American History, Journal of Illinois History, and North Carolina Historical Review and delivered comments on a panel at the 2001 Mid-America Conference on History. By far his proudest moment, however, occurred on April 29th 2001, when his wife Anke gave birth to their son, Maximilian.

Edmund Wehrle published an article entitled "No More Pressing Task Than Organization in Southeast Asia: The AFL-CIO Approaches the Vietnam War, 1947-1964," in Labor History 42 (August 2001). He delivered papers at the June 2001 Annual Meeting of Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations and Fall 2001 Annual Meeting of North American Labor History Conference. He continues to prepare a manuscript for publication dealing with the American organized labor and the Vietnam War.

Bailey K. Young was promoted to the rank of Professor in May, 2001, and received the Faculty Achievement and Contribution Award in the Balanced Category in November. His "Sacred Topography: The Impact of the Funerary Basilica in Late Antique Gaul," was published in Revisiting Late Roman Gaul, ed. Ralph Mathisen and Danuta Shanzer (Ashgate, 2001); as was his "Autun and the Civitas Aeduarum: Maintaining and Transforming a Regional Identity in Late Antiquity," in Urban Centers and Rural Contexts in Late Antiquity, ed. Thomas Burns and John Eadie (Michigan State, 2001). In July 2001 he directed The EIU/UCL Summer Archaeology Program at Walhain Castle, in Belgium, for the third time, and he co-authored a short report on Walhain in Archaeologia Medievalis, Activit  s 2000, 22 (Tervuren, Belgium, 2001). He gave an invited paper at an international conference on Funerary Archaeology held at the site of a famous Iron-Age Celtic fortress in central France once occupied by Julius Caesar, and he organized a session at the Kalamazoo

Historical Administration Students

Andrew Cougill will satisfy his six-month internship as the Manager of Collections and Interpretation at the Grissom Air Museum in Peru, Indiana. Andy will be busy, as he is responsible for creating collections policies and procedures, implementing effective collections care practices, developing educational programming, and maintaining exhibits.

Genia Hesser came to Eastern Illinois from Macalester College where she obtained a B.A. in English and History, and she spent two seasons at the Minnesota Historical Society at Forestville. Her article "Being Productive: An Analysis of an Amish Sewing Room and its Tools in the 21st Century," appeared in Midwest Open Air Museums Magazine (Fall 2001). She will intern at the New Glarus Swiss Historical Village in Wisconsin.

Jamie Hoeland received the Chester A. Brown Memorial Scholarship from the Elgin Genealogical Society of Elgin, Illinois. She will intern as Collections Manager at the downers Grove Park District Museum and will also work with collections at the Elmhurst Historical Museum.

Nathan Kemler, this year's Technology in History Assistant, will intern at the Ten Chimneys Foundation in Genesee Depot, Wisconsin.

Lindsey McCallister has a nine-month collections management internship at the Amherst Museum (New York).

Several scholarships and prizes were awarded at the banquet. Receiving awards and scholarships were:

- Harley Jones (the Ardath Fogelsanger History Scholarship),
 Peter Noll and Teresa Cribelar (the Lavern M. Hamand Graduate Writing Award),
 Kelli Rutger (the Anne Frank Award),
 Lou Baczewski (the Alexander Hamilton Paper in American History),
 Mirjam Mueller (the Wolfgang and Barbara Schlauch European History Scholarship),
 Jennifer Hyser and Jamie Bolander (the Robert and Julie Sterling History Scholarship),
 Teresa Cribelar and Philip Caposey (the Rex Syndergaard Scholarship),
 Martin Ruhaak (the Elisha and Estella Ziegler Baumgartner Scholarship), Kris Maulden, David Bell, and Jennifer Lancaster (the Errett and Mazie Warner Presidential Award in History), and
 Amy Willenborg (William B. Reid History Education Scholarship).

In addition, it was announced that the Graduate School had awarded David Bell the prestigious Hampton Scholarship for two years' study in our M.A. in History program (see Graduate Student News).

Rob Martin will be the first of two Randall L. Tobias Foundation Rural History Fellows. HA alumnus Dan Schoenenburg (1997), Historic Area Manager, Conner Prairie, will work with the fellows in program development associated with the new historic area at Conner Prairie, Library Corner, an 1886 rural crossroads and farm. Rob, as the historic livestock breed Tobias Fellow, will work with Conner Prairie staff to raise endangered breeds of historically significant livestock.

Pete Noll headed to Maine to the Washburn Norlands Living History Center, Livermore, in June. He will focus on museum education/interpretation, and hopes to work with collection and archives as well. He received the Historical Administration Scholarship for the 2001-02 class. His paper on the German Element in Southern Humboldt Township was published in Historia and shared the 2002 Lavern M. Hamand Graduate Writing Award.

Laurie Peterson will intern with the Elwood House Museum in DeKalb.

Clay Shelley heads back to Utah for his six-month internship with the Park City Museum and the Summit County Historical Society, Park City, Utah.

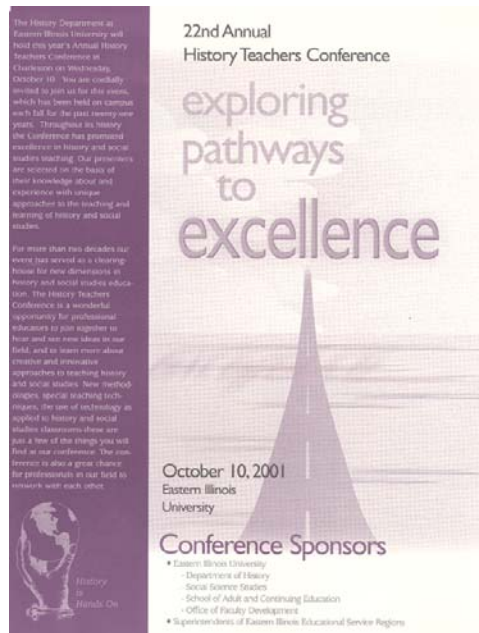

Duane Smith accepted an internship offer to work at Old Salem, in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. He will work with their newly formed interpretation department. He will interpret as well, and will learn from skilled craftsmen in the woodworking and blacksmith shops. He received one of nine fellowships to attend the Association for Living History, Farm and Agriculture Museum conference in Nova Scotia (June 2002).

Angela Stanford, who published an article on Vietnam Veterans in Historia and who organized an on-campus discussion with vets this Spring, will be working at the Boulder Museum of History. She will help the staff design and implement storage and documentation plans for their collection of about 10,000 objects. She received the Historical Administration Program Association Scholarship for 2001-02.

Teachers Conferencecont'd.

- Dr. Michelle Olsen of Eastern Illinois who explored ways architecture can be integrated into a social studies curriculum;
- Marshall Schacht of St. Joseph-Ogden High School who explained how activity-based history curriculum can be used to reach Illinois state learning standards;
- Dr. Karen Wink of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy who discussed important techniques for giving feedback student writing assignments; and
- Craig Garner of Marshall High School who hosted the always popular Swap Shop of Ideas, Methods and Materials.

in excess of $8,000, money which we used to support student scholarships, the publication of Historia and this Newsletter, field trips for students, and bringing guest lecturers to campus. As usual, the History Department kept costs of the Telefund down by doing most of our own (volunteer) calling (rather than using the paid student staff at EIU Foundation), so over 90% of the money you contributed was actually paid into our accounts and used directly to enhance our programs and support our students. In fact, it is our current plan to develop in partnership with the College of Arts and Humanities ten new $500 scholarships specifically designated for entering students (freshmen or transfer) in History to complement our existing scholarships for students further along in the programs. This is only possible because of your support. Please know that all of us—faculty and current students together—warmly appreciate your generosity.

History Department Telefund, 2001-2002

Once again the Department is indebted to its generous alumni (see Letter from the Chair) who have responded generously to the once a year phone calls from faculty and students to discover what they had been doing (see Alumni News), and to ask for donations to help fund Department scholarships, classroom equipment, public lectures, field trips, and student publications. The list below recognizes all those who contributed between May 1, 2001 and June 30, 2002, and are listed by year of graduation (all are History, Historical Administration, or Social Science B.A. or M.A. graduates, except where noted). Thanks to all who continue to support History at Eastern Illinois. Enclosed is a mail-in donation form.

Historia

by Douglas W. Bible

Now in its eleventh edition since 1992, Historia, the student history journal of Eastern Illinois University and the Epsilon Mu Chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, tries to present the best writing on historical topics by undergraduates and graduate students majoring in many disciplines and it has been successful. Historia has won the Gerald Nash Student Journal Award in two past years. This year's volume contains articles covering areas ranging from England and France, to St. Louis and even Humbolt in Coles County (below); time periods from the Middle Ages to the late 20th Century; and topics including trade unions, war, the poor, alchemy, Native Americans, and architecture. Historia also can be found online at <<http://www.eiu.edu/~historia>>, which now includes information and many articles from all volumes.

History Responds To September 11

Members of the History community at Eastern Illinois responded in different ways to the events of September 11, 2001. Just a few days after the attacks, Drs. Scott Levi and Dan McMillan participated in a public panel on "Causes and Consequences of the Recent Terrorist Actions," attended by a standing-room-only audience. Drs. Levi and Newton Key showed the movie "Battle of Algiers" and discussed the difficulties of any war on terrorism. In subsequent months, Dr. Levi lectured across our campus on the current conflict, and he also taught a course on "Terrorism: A Comparative and Global History." Finally, the History Club collected money for the victims of the attacks on September 11.
