ALUMNI VISIT FOR AWARDS
By Heather Gosewisch, Staff Reporter
Reported from DEN

People from different backgrounds found a common ground at the Alumni Association's 2007 Alumni Awards on Saturday night. The award ceremony and dinner was held in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union's University Ballroom.

Among those honored were Joni Comstock, Don Gher, Marty Hickman, Kevin Savoree, Jim Schnorf for the Distinguished Alumni Award, Joe Fatheree for the Distinguished Educator Award, Betty Smithson for the Louis V. Hencken Alumni Service Award and Tony Romo for the Outstanding Young Alumnus Award.

The recipients are chosen through the Nomination and Awards Committee, which receives packets of information about each nominee. The members of the committee read through all of the nominees' accomplishments and vote on the best candidate. These awards are given to alumni who have done something significant in their lives, said Chelsea Frederick, associate director of Alumni Services, and is a chance to recognize the alumni and thank them for their hard work and for making the Eastern name more well-known.

The award winners received a VIP treatment while at Eastern. They were seen in the Homecoming parade, having meals with President Bill Perry and being honored at the Panther football game.

Frederick said many of the alumni who come back are eager to return and get involved with the university. One alumnus, Don Gher ’73, offered his whole day to talk to students in the business school and talk about his experiences in his job field. Students saw that he was in the same position they are and learned that they can be just as successful and he is.

The recipients thanked the Alumni Association for the award but also talked about why Eastern has played a part in helping them have such great lives. "It is an honor to come to campus," said Comstock, senior woman administrator for the National Collegiate Athletic Association. "This has been a reminder of the great education and foundation this university has given me."

STEPPING TO THE BEAT
By Colleen Kitka, Greek Life Reporter, DEN

More than 800 people packed into the Student Recreation Center on Saturday night to watch the Homecoming Step Show, "Stomp Hard." Delta Sigma Theta took first place for the sororities, and Phi Beta Sigma took first in the fraternity division. Each winner was awarded a $1,000 check and a large trophy. "Our money goes to our chapter for more programs," said Cachet Morris, senior English major and member of Delta Sigma Theta.

The National Pan-Hellenic Council hosted the show. The council had not hosted a show since 2003 due to a decline in Black Greek life involvement. But this weekend, four of the five NPHC Greek chapters on campus took part in the show. During the hiatus, Minority Affairs sponsored the show.

The Eastern NPHC members were not the only ones involved in the step show. An invitation was extended to the Divine Nine fraternities and sororities not represented at Eastern. The Divine Nine are traditional fraternities and sororities that are part of the NPHC.

The Alpha Phi Alphas performed first and dedicated its routine to Eastern student Ivory Ricks, who died Oct. 14. Her brother planned to perform with the group, but because of his sister's sudden death, he did not participate. Each member also walked onstage with white roses in memory of Ricks.

The step show tradition is important to the Black Greek community. The movements are laced with the Greek organization's history and African roots. "Stepping consists of several choreographed series of rhythmic movements, taps, stomps and 'hops,'" said Sunni Solomon II, NPHC adviser. "The NPHC sororities have a signature step that is accompanied by a chant that explains how their organization was founded, often referred to as the 'Founders Step.'"

PAINTER DISCUSSES EATING HEALTH PORTION SIZES AND DOCUMENTARY
Excerpts from October 3, 2007, Coles County Leader
Article by Sara Cuadrado

After creating the documentary "Portion Size Me," Jim Painter has been getting a lot of publicity. "Cosmo has not called me yet," Painter joked. Glamour, Better Homes and Gardens and the CBS Morning Show all interviewed Painter, Family and Consumer Sciences chair at Eastern, about his documentary. He said the idea for the documentary came to him while he was eating lunch with his wife about two and a half years ago. He had just seen the movie Supersize Me.

"I wanted to show you could eat fast food and not be unhealthy," Painter said. Painter decided to ask two students to participate in this study. He chose Aaron Grobengieser and Ellen Shike, who were both Eastern graduate students at the time studying nutrition. They had three simple rules: only eat fast food, choose proper portions and make healthy choices in food.

Both students would explain in the documentary how they would make their meal healthy. After two weeks, the students had a health exam, and both students found that they unintentionally lost weight. "Whenever you restrict yourself, even to fast food, you lose weight," Painter said. Both students' cholesterol also lowered during the study.

Painter said he believes it is not the industry that causes people to be overweight, but rather it is the people's own fault. "We have this idea that more is better," Painter said. Painter also showed during his presentation how portion sizes have gotten bigger over the years. He said that portion control could be as easy as choosing smaller plates. If using bigger plates, people feel the need to fill the plate when a smaller portion could be sufficient.

Portion Size Me has sold over $45,000 worth of copies, and Painter receives a small section of the profit. His real goal is to be heard and help change the industry. "One of my great goals in life is to be on Oprah," Painter said.

EASTERN SAYS GOODBYE TO COLONEL JOSEPH A. KELLY

EIU says goodbye to a 1938 graduate who made a significant difference in the course of history. Colonel Joseph A. Kelly, 92, U.S.A.F.-ret. of Germantown, TN, died October 27, 2007, at home. Colonel Kelly was born in Westville, IL in 1915. After graduating from Westville HS, he entered EIU, where he graduated in 1938 with a B.S. in Chemistry. He entered flight training school with the Army Air Corps initially at Randolph Field and continued with advanced flight training at Kelly Field, both in San Antonio, TX. His flight training class started with 100 cadets and Col. Kelly graduated second in his class.
In the spring of 1939, he was commissioned second lieutenant in the Army Air Corps and also received his wings. In the spring of 1941 (six months before Pearl Harbor), Col. Kelly was transferred to the American Embassy in London, England, where, under President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Lend Lease program, American pilots were sent to train pilots in the British Royal Air Force on how to fight against the German Luftwaffe during the Battle of Britain. After his service in England, Col. Kelly fought in North Africa and later in Italy, where he flew a total of 92 combat missions, 70 of which he served as squadron commander.

He earned seven campaign battle stars and received seven air medals, including the Distinguished Flying Cross (the highest medal a pilot can receive with the exception of the Medal of Honor). He flew every type of fighter plane during the war, including the British Supermarine Spitfire and the American P-38 Lightning, P-40 Warhawk, A-36 Apache and P-51 Mustang.

In 1944, in a mission over Italy, Col. Kelly shot down a German bomber (Heinkel 111) ferrying 13 Luftwaffe pilots back to Germany to bring back more fighters. Col. Kelly is featured prominently in Englishman Peter C. Smith's book, "Straight Down," which is about World War II dive bomber planes. He is also featured in Memphian Victor Robilio's newly published book, "The Way It Was." After WWII, Col. Kelly served in both the Korean War and the Vietnam War, making him one of the few military officers to serve in all three wars. In 1956, Col. Kelly was transferred to Memphis as base commander of the 2584 Air Force Squadron at the Memphis Municipal Airport. Col. Kelly completed his 30-year career at the Inspector General's Office at Bolling Air Force Base in Washington, D.C. He retired in 1968. Col. Kelly was predeceased by his wife of 53 years, Bernice R. Kelly. He is survived by his son, Tony Kelly of Germantown, and a granddaughter, Jill Kelly, who is an attorney in Nashville.

A Catholic Mass was held on Oct. 31, 2007, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Westville. Col. Kelly was laid to rest in Resurrection Cemetery in Danville, with military honors. E-mail condolences may be sent to the family at www.sunsetfuneralhome.com.

PANTHERS WIN DRAMATIC HOMECOMING 29-23
Taken from EIU Athletic Website

No. 24 Eastern Illinois won its eighth straight homecoming game in dramatic fashion as the Panthers (5-3, 4-1 OVC) held off a late Tennessee Martin (1-7, 1-4 OVC) drive that ended with a spiked ball at the one yard line as time expired to give EIU the 29-23 win.

Trailing 29-23 with 1:36 left in the game back-up UTM quarterback Cade Thompson drove the Skyhawks down the field as the drive started at the 20-yard line. Thompson completed seven of nine passes. His last completion was to Jamaal Akbar who was tackled by Adrian Arrington at the one yard line with one second remaining. Instead of running one last play, UTM spiked the ball as time ran out. Eastern Illinois had taken the 29-23 lead as Bodie Reeder engineered his first comeback win as EIU's starting quarterback. Tom Hansen hit a 33-yard field goal with 3:09 left in the game to lift Tennessee Martin to a 23-21 lead.

Reeder completed two passes to Ademola Adeniji and Micah Rucker before Travorus Bess broke a big 25-yard run to put the ball at the UTM 12 yard line. Adeniji would hammer the ball into the end zone two plays later with runs of 9 and 3 yards. Reeder would hit Trent Steckel for the two-point conversion.

Early in the game both teams traded offensive scores. Roren Thomas hauled in a pass from Dexter Anoka from 24 yards out for UTM's first score with 6:49 left in the first quarter. Hansen would push the extra point attempt wide right which would factor into the remainder of the day's scoring.

EIU answered as Reeder hit Rucker from five yards out with 1:40 to go in the first. Don Chapman put UTM up 13-7 going into the half with a 25-yard score in the second quarter. Chapman finished with 140 yards on the ground.

The Skyhawks extended their lead to 20-7 early in the third quarter as EIU fumbled the ball to open its second half drive. Marcus Dawson leaned in from one yard out to camp a nine play, 44 yard drive.

Rucker and Reeder teamed up for their second score with 2:49 left in the third to bring EIU to within one score at 20-14. Reeder would throw his third touchdown pass of the day to Jordan Campanella from 11 yards out with 11:19 left in the game to give EIU the 21-20 lead.
Reeder was 17-for-26 for 189 yards and three touchdowns. The Panthers streak of games without an interception ended as Dante Harrold picked off Reeder to end EIU's stretch of 218 pass attempts without an interception. Rucker had seven catches for 98 yards and two touchdowns.

EIU will travel to Tennessee State next Saturday for a 6 p.m. kickoff in Nashville.

EIU ANNOUNCES PENN STATE FOOTBALL GAME
From the EIU Athletic website

Athletic director Ken Baker ’72,’73 has announced the signing of a contract that will have the football team traveling to play Penn State on Oct. 10, 2009. The game will mark the fourth straight season that Eastern has played a school from the Big Ten Conference. "This will be a great opportunity for our football team to play in one of the top environments in college football."

Next season, EIU will play the University of Illinois for the second time in three seasons, as the Panthers are scheduled to be the first guests in the renovated Memorial Stadium.

GALESKI, CLUTTER NAMED ATHLETES OF THE MONTH
From the EIU Athletic website

Eastern Illinois athletics has announced its male and female athletes for the month of September with men's soccer senior Mick Galeski and women's rugby junior Molly Clutter being honored.

Galeski, a midfielder from Blackburn, England, has helped the Panthers off to their best start in more than a decade at 7-2-1, scoring two goals and adding four assists. He was named the MVP of the Bradley Classic and was an All-Tournament selection at the UMKC Tournament. Galeski was also named the Missouri Valley Conference Player of the Week on Sept. 4.

Clutter, a center from Rossville, IL, made NCAA history on Sept. 15 as she became the first player to score during the Panthers inaugural NCAA rugby contest against West Chester University. Clutter would account for two tries in the game giving her six tries for the month. EIU rugby is off to a 2-2 start.
