Title: Quality of Instruction: Examining Discourse in Middle School Mathematics Instruction

Abstract: The research presented here provides insights into discursive practices that lead to rich mathematical interactions. Using a grounded theory approach analyzing the discourse of middle school math lessons, observed discourse paths were organized into a map indicating that communication pathways between the teacher and students occur in many ways and certain student-initiated questions may trigger predictable teaching patterns.